

Owner Candidate

GINA A. ROBB

Gina Robb was born and raised in Thoroughbred racing. Raised under Luigi Gino and married to John Robb, she has been an owner for 15 years and a breeder for eight years.

Robb would like to be the bridge that unifies the MTHA with her skills in communication acquired from multiple disciplines and a degree of the same name from the University of Baltimore.

Robb co-heads No Guts No Glory farm, the Woodbine, Md., operation that was runner-up for Owner of the Year in the 2019 Renaissance Awards. Based in Maryland, she has vastly expanded her business starting from one broodmare to a total of six.

Her success has given her insight into the details of business organization. Robb has a great passion for the industry that spawned from working in all sections of Maryland Thoroughbred racing. In addition to breeding and owning, Robb has spent time as an agent, trainer, hot walker, and even served as a television horseracing analyst from 1998-2002.

No Guts No Glory Farm has continued to support the Maryland racing industry by predominately breeding its mares to Maryland sires and contributing to the diminishing population of Maryland-bred horses. Robb hopes to extend this passion to responsibilities as an MTHA Board member.

Robb is an advocate for more negotiations to benefit horsemen and the Maryland-bred racing program. In addition, with her strong attendance on a daily basis at the Maryland racetracks, she plans on being an active voice for Maryland horsemen.
